You can find the answer key below: Note: Get ready to share your own ideas in class discussions! Here are our answers based on the questions provided: Q.1: How does someone overcome hardship? Has anyone ever felt like a "rose that grew from concrete" like Tupac Shakur said? If so, what was their tough spot and how did they get through it? If not, who's someone you'd describe as a "rose that grew from concrete"? What makes them similar to this rose? Ans: I think my cousin must feel like the "rose that grew from concrete" because she went through a lot before becoming a doctor. She took control by moving out and finding work, even if it didn't pay much. This shows how she's strong like the rose, just as someone who learned to walk without feet might be described. Q.2: Can we fully control our own destiny? Do you think help from others is necessary, or can we succeed alone? Ans: Yes! According to "The Rose That Grew From Concrete," we have full control over our lives. Even in hard times where nobody cares, keeping dreams alive helps us stay in charge of our fate. Support from others makes hardships easier, but it's not always needed - sometimes, help can just make the process smoother. Q.3: Why are dreams crucial for the rose's survival? What dreams do you have for your future? Are these dreams important to you? Ans: Dreams keep an individual alive and motivated in tough times. My dream is to... (Note: The answer was cut off, but it seems there's a personal thought that wasn't shared.) Situations arise that can cause embarrassment and failure; however, having a clear vision of success helps to stay focused on overcoming these challenges. I envision myself as a successful CEO in the future, meeting prominent entrepreneurs like Jack Ma and Bill Gates. This dream is crucial because it inspires deeper thinking and concentration, which aids in memory consolidation. Dreams also carry psychological significance, reflecting internal anxieties, fears, fantasies, and hopes. They may even serve as a means to forecast the future. Hi everyone, it's me Annie Smith.
